OPEN Sat, Dec 13 | 1:00 PM - 3:00 PMWelcome to the Floyd Kirby Estate. Built in 1974 and featured on NCModernist, this remarkable single-level home sits quietly on a private 1.65-acre double lot, its setting alone hinting at the easy, gracious lifestyle it was designed to offer. Step inside and you’re greeted by an expansive great room, a space so large it feels almost theatrical. Original built-ins, a glowing fireplace, and a sweeping bar lined with cabinetry and shelving tell the story of gatherings held here for decades. The remodeled kitchen continues the mid-century modern spirit with custom maple cabinetry, quartzite countertops, a 36” Bertazzoni gas range and hood, and a striking sheet-copper backsplash. Morning light filters beautifully into the breakfast area, which opens directly into the great room, drawing everyone together. And then…there’s the billiards room. If the walls could talk, they’d share stories. Today, it can just as easily serve as a formal living room and it spills out onto the covered patio, creating a natural flow for entertaining.The primary suite feels like its own private retreat, with room for a living area and sliding doors that open straight to the pool, perfect for quiet mornings or spontaneous late-night swims.While many updates are subtle, they add confidence and comfort to the home: a new roof and gutters (2024), all sliding glass doors replaced (2022), and dehumidifiers(2020) in the encapsulated crawl space. Outdoors, the story continues with a inground pool framed by a Travertine deck and a charming gazebo. And then there’s the conditioned detached building, just over 720 square feet, currently used as an office. With its own mini-split (2023), it’s a blank canvas waiting for its next chapter: a studio, gym, workshop, guest space, or home business. Surrounded by azaleas, camellias, and established landscaping, this home offers privacy, scale, and a sense of place that is increasingly rare. More than a home, it’s a setting for a life lived fully.AGENT’S LISTING
